MORE and more is a knowledge of the arts of etching, engraving and lithography becoming a necessary part of general culture.

The Print-Collector's Quarterly

now in its sixth year, is contributing a notable share to the furtherance of this knowledge. The magazine is designed to meet the needs not only of the artist and collector, but of all who are interested in the graphic arts. Its articles are both stimulating and authoritative, and are written by the foremost authorities of this country and of Europe.

Among the contributions for this year may be mentioned:

"A Jupiter in Sabots" by Robert J. Wickenden, Adolph von Menzel by Elizabeth Luther Cary, French Artists at the Siege of Paris by William Aspenwall Bradley, Albert Sterner's Lithographs, Goya's Lithographs by Campbell Dodgson, Drawings by French and Italian Artists in the Metropolitan Museum by George S. Hellman, Blake and Calvert by Lawrence Binyon.
